The Autobiography of an Unfortunate Bull Calum Crubach

The autobiography of an unfortunate bull was written by Calum Crubach in 1925. Very little information is known about the author. It tells an uplifting and yet tragic story of a young Shorthorn bull being sent for sale at the world famous Perth Bull sales. Anyone who has been involved in this event, or has bred pedigree stock, will relate to the hardships and often disappointing consequences, where hopes are dashed and sometimes dreams are shattered. The narrative is written in the authentic Doric language that would be typically spoken in North East Scotland at that time. This book is a reprint of the original, complete with drawings and foreword by the author.
